

March 19, 2020

COVID-19 UPDATE

We are currently in the midst of an unprecedented situation as the COVID-19 outbreak continues to rapidly evolve on a daily basis. As we navigate the uncertainties of this challenging time, the wellbeing of our staff, clients and the broader community remains top of mind. To ensure we continue to deliver uninterrupted service to clients and maintain the health and safety of our teams, we have made the decision that all employees will work from home until further notice.

From the onset of the outbreak, we have implemented policies and preventative measures as outlined in our business continuity plan (BCP), including restricting business travel, health awareness campaigns, and increasing the use of video and teleconference capabilities. Additionally, we proactively reviewed and successfully tested our BCP with staff working from home to ensure no disruption to our services. Going forward, we will continue to diligently monitor the ongoing COVID-19 developments and adjust our operations according to the recommendations of health authorities and government bodies.

At the same time, our portfolio managers across our global offices are ready with access to the information they need and the ability to adjust investment portfolios. The same applies to our senior professionals and associate teams, and our operational specialists who maintain the integrity of our systems and processes.

We will provide further updates, as appropriate. If you would like to talk to one of our investment professionals about how we can help you reach your long-term financial goals, please see the contact details on our website.

Sincerely,

Corey

Corey MacEachern
Business Management & Operations
Connor, Clark & Lunn Private Capital